

LAS VEGAS DAILY GAZETTE.

VOL. 3.

THURSDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 3, 1881.

NO. 102.

BROWNE & MANZANARES

LAS VEGAS AND SOCORRO, N. M.

Jobbers of Groceries, DRY GOODS, Clothing, Boots, Shoes, HATS, COATS, Etc., both here and in the Eastern Markets.

P. COGHILAN

Has Opened the Largest and Best Assorted Stock of

BOOTS AND SHOES

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL, EVER BROUGHT TO NEW MEXICO.

L. L. Howison, Manager

The Attention of Dealers is Called to this Stock. Work Done to Order.

RAILROAD AVE., EAST LAS VEGAS.

DO YOU REALIZE

—THAT AT—

MARCUS & CLEMM'S

CENTRE STREET, is the Neatest, Nicest and Cheapest Assortment of ## CLOTHING!

Do you comprehend that at Marcus & Clemm's, Centre Street, is a perfect collection of HEAVY FALL AND WINTER SUITS AND OVERCOATS.

DO YOU BELIEVE

That right here is the place where you can buy just what you want for less money than you pay for inferior goods elsewhere? We are prepared to PROVE. Permit us to show our Goods and Prices. They also keep the Largest Stock of Groceries, WHOLESALE AND RETAIL. Call on

MARCUS & CLEMM

Centre Street.

East Las Vegas, - - - - - New Mexico

The Largest Clothing House

IN THE TERRITORY.

SELLING AT THE LOWEST PRICES AND KEEPING THE

FINEST ASSORTMENT

—IS THE—

Boston Clothing House

WE RECOGNIZE

NO COMPETITION

AND PROPOSE TO LEAD THE SEASON IN

LOW PRICES

SEEING IS BELIEVING!

COHN & BLOCH

RAILROAD AVENUE.

LOCKHART & CO.

Las Vegas, New Mexico.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

HARDWARE

QUEENSWARE.

STOVES & FURNITURE

Keep the largest stock of Lumber, Sash, Doors, Blinds, Paints, Oils and Glass in the Territory.

FRANK ALLEN,

DEPUTY

U. S. MINERAL SURVEYOR.

Civil Engineering and Surveying of all kinds carefully attended to. Special attention given to topographical maps of mining districts.

Budweiser beer at Billy's.

5-6-1f

Telephones for Residences.

Telephones will be placed in private houses at the rate of $20 per annum. Application can be made at the San Miguel National Bank. 10-27tf

Lime for Sale.

In any quantity desired. Address: Z. S. LONGEVAN, N. M. Watrous, N. M.

NEWS BY TELEGRAPH

Readable Telegrams Concerning Happenings at Washington.

President Arthur Will Move into the White House Next Week.

Reports of the Paymaster-General and Chief Signal Officer.

Ben Butler Speaks His Mind on the Panama Canal Business.

He Positively Opposes It Under any Circumstances.

Mention of Matters of Moment in Lands Beyond the Seas.

The County Mayo Riots Resulted in Several Deaths.

And the People Still Resist the Military and Police.

Rumor of the Contemplated Sale of Gibraltar to Spain.

Changes of Cuban Government Suggested in the Spanish Cortes.

Millers of the Northwest Much Aggrieved at the Wheat Market.

Washington City Advises THE PRESIDENT WILL OCCUPY THE WHITE HOUSE NEXT WEEK.

Washington, Nov. 2.—President Arthur goes to New York to-morrow and will not return until the middle or last of next week when he will go direct to the White House and remain there. When at the White House yesterday he selected his room in the northwestern portion of the house.

PAYMASTER-GENERAL'S REPORT. Paymaster-General Brown in his annual report gives receipts of $15,530,977, all accounted for. Received during the fiscal year for soldiers deposits $564,113; increase $46,938 over the previous year.

INSTRUCTED TO EXAMINE FURTHER.

The Commissioners appointed to examine 200 miles of the Northern Pacific railroad in Washington Territory have been directed to examine an additional section of twenty-five miles extending eastward into Idaho.

CHANGE IN THE NAVAL ACADEMY. Captain Francis M. Ramsey has been assigned to duty as Superintendent of the United States Naval Academy, and Admiral Rodgers will be relieved.

SIGNAL SERVICE REPORT. General Hazen, chief signal officer, in his annual report says: "The past year has been distinguished by additional progress and by decided improvements. Referring to weather for risks made this year for the first time in the interest of cotton growers, General Hazen says: Congress did not appropriate the amount carefully estimated as necessary to meet the expense of increased work and I was unwillingly compelled to reduce the number of stations to 100, selected from 248 stations promised which are so situated as to best cover the latter belt. I earnestly hope Congress will this year provide funds necessary for the extension of this special feature of the signal service which promises, with very small expenditure, such great practical advantages to the staple interests of the South."

Ben Butler on the Panama Canal.

New York, Nov. 2.—Ben Butler told the Herald reporter yesterday: "I am opposed in every dictate of judgment and every sentiment of patriotism to the Panama Canal scheme, either in peace or war. I do not put it upon the silly grounds that the building of it is an infringement of the Monroe doctrine."

England has seized upon the whole commerce of the Eastern shores of the American continent. We still control some commerce on the Western shores, but open that canal and she will seize upon that. If any body indulges the not too wise idea that when British vessels, carrying British goods, get through the canal they will take their freight up to San Francisco to be distributed up and down the State from thence, such person simply indulges in a dream. British ships will distribute right themselves in their own way to the exclusion of American merchants. England can lay goods down at the Panama canal from Liverpool as cheap as she can in New York. As the matter stands now England could not blockade San Francisco because no blockade would be sufficient which was not made by steam vessels, and she has no war vessels which can carry more than enough coal to make the run from the Sandwich Islands to San Francisco and return. But open the canal and you might as well anchor Gibraltar off Golden Gate because then she could put her heavy iron clads around our Pacific port and maintain them there; certainly until we could build a navy which could cope with them. The whole western coast of our continent would be open to the ravages of her navy until we could place an iron clad navy on that coast that could meet her."

Terrible Storm.

City of Mexico, Oct. 25.—In a terrible storm at Manzanillo four large vessels and all the smaller crafts in the harbor were lost. The custom house was completely destroyed. The Pacific mail steamer, due before the storm had not arrived at last accounts.

Embezzler.

New York, Nov. 2. Augustus D. Wheelock, book-keeper for J. C. Volcott & Co., charged with the embezzlement of $5,500 arrived to-day from Europe and gave bail in the sum of $5,000.

Transatlantic Cablegrams.

BLOODY WAR IN COUNTY MAYO.

London, Oct. 2.—The disturbances continue at Bellmullet, County Mayo. Thus far four persons have been wounded in the affray Thursday last are dead and six more deaths are expected. Two hundred military and 200 police are on the spot. The road leading to Anglaw is blockaded with stones and the bridge has been broken for the purpose of impeding the movements of the military.

ARRESTED.

Gilholly, Secretary of the Bantry, Cork County, branch League has been arrested.

ENGLAND HONORS AMERICA.

London, Nov. 2.—The novel feature of the Lord Mayor's procession was a banner of the United States, escorted by a guard of honor.

ENGLISH ELECTIONS.

The Conservative gain in the municipal elections was 86; Liberal gain 45. The most important change was at Stanley Bridge, where the Conservatives gained six seats. They gained four in Oldham, three in Carlisle, three in Liverpool. The foregoing results were probably attributed to the Irish vote, but Conservative gains are pretty evenly distributed among the towns of large Irish population and those purely English.

LONDON GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY.

London, Nov. 2.—The first meeting of the Geographical Society will be devoted entirely to Arctic matters. The subjects for discussion will be the whereabouts of Capt. Smith, who set out early in the summer for Franz Joseph's land and has not yet returned. Also the Dutch expedition in the Wilhelm Barentz, supposed to be caught in the ice in the neighborhood of Spitzbergen.

INTERESTING TALK IN THE SPANISH CORTES.

Madrid, Nov. 2.—Senor Portuendo, Deputy for Havana, the most liberal partisan of Cuban autonomy, and in favor of a government under the sway of Spain, like that of Canada or Australia under English rule, made a speech in Cortes ratifying the policy of the liberal government in its policy of treating with precedents and with officials of the Canovas government, its declining to carry out reforms. The detention of so many Cuban prisoners in Europe, its indulgence of the abuses of colonial administration and its playing into the hands of Creole Conservatives and planters, even subordinates to the Madrid Government on condition of being allowed their own way in the island.

Leon y Castillon, Minister of Colonies, in a long speech, upbraided the impatience and ingratitude of Cuban Liberals.

Gibraltar for Sale.

New York, Nov. 2.—The World's cable from London says: "For some time past it has been whispered at the club that the government intends to sell Gibraltar to Spain, and the story seems to have some foundation. It is said the subject has been discussed in the Cabinet and the Premier's proposal met with no very decided opposition from his colleagues. Of course it will be easy for Mr. Gladstone to convince the radicals that the interest of peace, public morality and eternal justice demand the sale, but there will be a loud outcry, not only from the old jingoes of the Army and Navy club who spend the day in upbraiding their gentry limbs and cursing radicalism, but from the moderate liberals. To withdraw from Gibraltar would be to take the first step in Lord Sherbrook's programme for the abandonment of India, and would be a notice to all the world that England was about to retire from the imperial business. Spaniards know their man and will offer a low price at first, but the bidding will advance, and the Premier will be easily satisfied. He auctioned off the guns of the citadel of Quebec without compunction, and will doubtless argue that as Wolfe shed more lustre on the British arms than Sir George Rooke, who seized the rock in the name of Queen Anne, or Lord Heathfield, its gallant defender in later years, it is only false pride that induces us to hold the keys of the Mediterranean after having dismantled the gateway of the St. Lawrence."

Millers' Association.

Milwaukee, Nov. 2.—The Millers' Association to-day adopted a resolution asking the Chamber of Commerce to enforce the law in regard to the inspection of wheat as a vast quantity of wheat was coming in from the Northwest which, while it looks fair and grades No. 2, and even No. 1, is badly injured by rain and is damp and tough, and totally unfit for flour. The Association also telegraphed as follows: Millers' Association, Minneapolis.—At a meeting of the millers of this city to-day it was resolved, owing to the unwarranted condition of the wheat market which is manipulated in the interest of speculators and against all legitimate business, we believe it is for the interest of the millers of this country to make common cause and shut down their mills until the price of wheat shall be at figures to compete with the markets of the world. All the mills here have shut down, and we invite your co-operation.

[Signed.] EDWARD SARDERS, Pres. W. H. SEAMANS, Sec'y.

New Exchange Building Contemplated.

New York, Nov. 2.—The board of managers of the produce exchange favor erecting a new building as recommended by the building committee at a cost not exceeding two million providing it can be completed without creating a total debt of more than $125,000.

Atlanta Items.

SUICIDE.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 2.—Rufus McPherson killed himself to-day in the bar-room of the Kimball House. The alleged cause was that his grandfather disinherited him.

COTTON EXHIBITION.

The Commissioner of Agriculture delivered an address on the advancement of agriculture in America. National exhibitors declare the Exposition fully open.

Minnesota Will "Adjust" Her Debt.

St. Paul, Nov. 2.—The House of Representatives adopted, 77 to 39, the Senate bill to adjust the old bonded debt, but amended it so that the rate of interest shall not exceed 5 per cent. absolutely, at which the Senate fixed it.

Wrecked at Sea.

St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 2.—Reports of a wreck are received from the northward. One man only of one crew was saved.

Confederate Bonds Rising.

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 2.—Large amounts of Confederate bonds were purchased to-day at from $10 to $11.

Is There a Monument Over Tom Corwin's Grave Yet?

Chicago, Oct. 26.—"Is there a monument over Tom Corwin's grave yet?" was Col. Ingersoll's telegraphic reply to an invitation to lecture in Lebanon, Ind., this winter. "No, sir," answered the old gentleman who was acting as secretary of the lecture association; and before he left the telegraph office the operator handed him a message which read: "I would not lecture in your old town for the half of it."

Robert G. Ingersoll.

Corwin's grave is on the crest of a little knoll on the east side of the town cemetery at Lebanon. The remains of his wife lie on one side of him, and those of his son on the other. Standing over them one can see miles away across rich valleys and fertile hillsides, the scene of more than one of Corwin's famous speeches. Back in the valley of Turtle Creek is the sleepy old town of Lebanon. The Corwin family, consisting of one married and one single daughter, the latter lame and below the average intellect, and with a complexion as dark as her father's—still reside in the old mansion near the cemetery. Corwin died in 1865 in Washington, and nearly every man, woman and child in Warren county flocked to his funeral when his remains were taken home. They buried him with great pomp, and then began to talk about a monument. The family thought the county ought to erect one and the Commissioners said it was plainly the duty of the family. Nothing was done by either until Ingersoll's message fell among them like a hot shot, and turned the town upside down. Corwin's son-in-law, a Cincinnati lawyer, named Sage, then ordered a Quincy shaft thirteen feet high, and it has just been put in place.

A Washington Romance.

A Washington letter to the Providence Press says: "A lady of my acquaintance, a sister-in-law of Dr. Bliss, quite recently made, or rather acknowledged, a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went to his lodgings and took her place at his bedside as his nurse, acknowledging then that they had been married more than a year, but she had concealed a romantic marriage with a gentleman employed at a sub-door-keeper at the capitol, who had lost both feet in the Union army. She was a stenographer in the patent office, drawing a salary of $1,200 a year. She lived frugally and held her place for years; to all appearances growing into the gentle, shadowy, self-respecting spinsterhood that so many lady clerks prefer to a common-place or ill-sorted marriage. A few months since the gentleman referred to fell ill, and to the surprise of her friends she went